DIRECTORIES

The American Booktrade Directory

July

Including a list of 6,000 booksellers, publishers, trade organizations and periodicals, wholesalers, literary agents, newspaper syndicates, subscription book concerns, British publishers, wholesale agents in foreign publications, and other lists.

Retail booksellers of all types are arranged by states and cities, and listed alphabetically thereunder. Practically all are keyed to give type of store and details of departments. A very valuable mailing list.

Publishers and other lists are alphabetically arranged. This is the only book-trade fact book of names and addresses in this industry. $10.00

The American Library Directory

A list by states of some 9,000 libraries—with guide to class of library and with names of librarian and statistical data. The list includes: public libraries, college and university libraries, professional and institutional libraries, library organizations, library schools and leading libraries of Canada. The book includes an index to special collections.

The arrangement is alphabetical by states, and cities—under which libraries are listed in alphabetical order. Includes a great deal of statistical information about each library. $12.00

Periodicals Directory—Revised and Enlarged

Sept.

A CLASSIFIED GUIDE TO A SELECTED LIST OF CURRENT PERIODICALS—DOMESTIC AND FOREIGN, edited by CAROLYN F. ULRICH, Chief Periodicals Division, N. Y. Public Library.

This directory is planned for those interested in business and industry as well as for librarians of all types and sizes of libraries, not only as a tool for reference but also as an aid in the selection of titles for purchase.

This list does not aim to be exhaustive but its eight thousand selected titles represent the periodicals published in the United States and foreign countries, especially in England, France and Germany, which have been found most useful in American collections. $12.00

BORDER GUNS

by

LEIGH CARDER

Author of OUTLAW JUSTICE

THE success of Leigh Carder's first book, OUTLAW JUSTICE, makes the publication of BORDER GUNS an important event for western story fans. Here he demonstrates again his ability to spin a yarn of stirring action that grips the reader as few other westerns can; and he does it with a brand of breath-taking writing far above the level of the run-of-the-mill western story. Leigh Carder is taking his place in the top flight of "western" aces.

"This is a terribly unmoral, improvident, and wine-drugged story, not conducive to good citizenship, but it has left me strangely buoyant and joyful—it is so simple and beautiful and such a very perfect thing."

MARIA PASSAGE
D.D. Book Shops, New York

"Enjoyed it more than I did FEBRUARY HILL, and think it has much more humor."

N. F. GUESS
Kroch's, Chicago

"One of the funniest books I have read in years." —RICHARD FULLER

Old Corner Bookstore, Boston

"One has to go back several years to find a book as thoroughly satisfactory as TORTILLA FLAT"

ALFRED A. VAN DUYM

BY JOHN STEINBECK

Published May 28 · $2.50 · COVICI-FRIEDE

"Not since the far-off days when I first became acquainted with Athos, Porthos, and d'Artagnan, have I been so enthralled ... The book has impressed me more than anything I have read in years. It is pure gold."

—HESTER HUNTER

Hester Hunter's Book Shop, Tucson

"It's a great book, a hell of a swell book, and we will sell a lot of copies of it."

BEN ABRAMSON
Argus Book Shop, Chicago

"Not once in a blue moon does there appear a book as outrageous, baffling and wholly delightful as John Steinbeck's TORTILLA FLAT, a novel which creates its own category as did FEBRUARY HILL and ONE MORE SPRING."

TERENCE HOLLIDAY
The Holliday Book Shop, New York

"Swell. Lovable, and sweet for so picar-esque a tale."

MORRIS STAR
Post Off. News Co., Chicago

"Hits the high water mark of sweet perfidy and leaves an after-glow seldom experienced in a workaday world."

a novel by ROBERT RYLEE
Chosen by the Book-of-the-Month Club for July

"Fine, sincere, and authentic. There is a rare and almost extinct quality about this book. Nobility is the best name for it simply because I cannot think of a better. And there is a humanity in the characters, a deep and self-obliterating compassion in the writing that make the novel seem an experience lived rather than a book read."

—DUBOSE HEYWARD. 308 pages, $2.50

FARRAR & RINEHART, INC., 232 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY

The hilarious story of an Iowa farmer in Hollywood

Pa Boyer was a fellow like Will Rogers . . . He was a good farmer but a bad loafer. He wasn't cut out for a life of ease and retirement in Southern California. Besides, money was getting short, and he'd heard he might pick up a few dollars working as an extra in a big Iowa farm picture that was being made.

Ma was a good Methodist. Pa knew there'd be the devil to pay if Ma found him hanging around the studios, so he told her he was helping a man build a house on the other side of town. He hiked around the studios and gradually got himself mixed up in the filming of an Epic of the Soil. It seems he was the only one in a whole gang of fake rustics who ever saw an Iowa farm, and his first achievement on the lot was driving a four-horse team without killing off the de-luxe blonde who was the star of the picture.

Pa made the grade. It all seemed a hectic, tomfoolery sort of thing to Pa Boyer and he said so in the kind of cryptic, earthy Iowese that made the author and director prick up their ears and write Pa's remarks into the picture every once in a while. In no time he was playing a lead character part; he was earning a colossal (to him) salary; he even got his lovely daughter a job on the lot.

It all had to come out sometime. And it did, when Pa Boyer's picture

PHIL STONG'S The Farmer in the Dell

alongside of the beautiful Maude Elverill got into all the papers. It got worse and worse. With rival studios wanting Pa's services, with fabulous painted women kissing him right and left, with famous actors driving his daughter around in their big cars, anybody but Pa Boyer might have got upset and flustered.

A perfect summer novel. This novel has everything that's needed for real entertainment. Phil Stong, whose earlier novels have been filmed, knows all about Hollywood, and he knows all about the people of his native Iowa. He has a fund of unexcelled anecdote about Hollywood and a wealth of the tangy Iowa farm talk which made his STATE FAIR and STRANGER'S RETURN so thoroughly delightful.

WHAT BRITAIN IS READING

Compiled By
HELEN... GOSSE

The "News Chronicle" arranges with leading Booksellers and Libraries to report their most popular books. This chart, compiled from their reports, shows clearly "What Britain is Reading." When two or more books report the same number of stars, have an equal number of stars, the one which figures highest, most often, in Booksellers' reports takes the lead. Booksellers' reports taken, the chart. Only books mentioned three or more times are included.

COMMENT : Among fiction, A. J. Cronin's extremely popular new novel, "The Stars Look Down," heads the list with flying colours. It was mentioned by every library or bookshop submitting lists. THIS epic story of the life of the Rogier family, who came from North Carolina shortly after the close of the Civil War and settled in a land very alien to them—in a place which later became Colorado Springs under the shadow of Pike's Peak—is a true piece of American history and a superb novel besides.

The book is full of fine situations and fine characterizations, any one of which could be considered an achievement.

One rarely comes upon a novel whose author knows so much about human nature and is willing to set it down without prejudice and without sentimentality. Scene after scene is of the sort that one reads and never forgets.

We consider this work, giving for once (and at last!) a truly convincing picture of the west—a most remarkable book!

THE PULITZER PRIZE for POETRY

THE highest honor in the world of American poetry has been given to this distinguished collection of verse by the youngest poet ever to receive the prize. Miss Wurdemann was first introduced to the public by the late George Sterling, who predicted for her the brilliant future which is now being realized.

Sales of 1600 copies in the first week after the award of the prize have completely exhausted the first edition of Bright Ambush.

A second printing is now on press. It will contain one new poem not included in the first edition, and will have a new preface, specially written by William Rose Benét, poetry editor of The Saturday Review of Literature. These features will make it a collector's item.

The price has been reduced to $2.00. The demand for the first edition is very heavy, and we will take back any unsold copies for full credit if they are forwarded immediately.

FERENC MOLNAR

a novel as romantic as LILLIOM
—as gently malicious as
THE PLAY'S THE THING

EVERYONE who has seen or read one of Molnar's sparkling plays is a prospect for this novel, the story of lovely Irma Lietzen in Venice—and in love.

Very young, very virginal and very daring, she gives her heart to the serious Aurel Szabo, who loves instead the Madonna-like Judith, of the "Turkish eyes," whose one wish in life is to be given a child by a man she adores. Irma's efforts to separate Aurel and Judith hurt herself alone. Though she thinks life is ended, Molnar delightfully makes the reader see that she is quite, quite wrong . . .

BOOKSELLER: "Fine! Have you seen the SELF-TEACHER? It's the 'Ask-Me-Another' book on Bridge. The questions enable you to test your skill. Then you check your answers."

"Great! The play is important, but do you have the SUMMARY? It completely covers the new 1935 system of bidding—at a glance. And it's a handy size for pocket or purse."

"Fascinating, isn't it? Now that you know the fundamentals of bidding and play, you'll enjoy the RED BOOK, for it gives the reasons why every lead is made."

Happy is the customer who has "all three." And happy the bookseller—for verily, a satisfied customer is still a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

Like Mr. Chrysler, suggest that your customers look at "all three." Unlike Mr. Chrysler, don't expect them to order only one. Each of Ely Culbertson's books was written to fill a specific need. None is in any way a duplication of any other. Every beginner and player should have "all three."

Fair Trade Bill Signed

New York State Law Allows Manufacturers of Trade-Marked Goods to Enter Into Price Contracts with Retailers

ON FRIDAY, MAY 17TH, Governor Lehman signed the Feld-Crawford Fair Trade Bill permitting manufacturers of trade-marked or branded goods to write into a contract with a retailer the price at which the goods may be sold to the consumer. Publishers are specifically mentioned in the bill.

Simultaneously, similar bills became law in the States of Iowa and Maryland. Eight States have now enacted similar fair trade legislation. California was the first State to enact such a law signed by the Governor of California on the 24th of May, 1933. New Jersey, Washington, Oregon and Wisconsin followed.

In signing the bill, Governor Lehman issued a statement in which he cited action by other States along the same line and declared that while he felt the bill was not perfect in its present form, it was deserving of approval. He further said:

"The purpose of this bill, as expressed in its title, is to protect trade-mark owners, distributors and the general public against injurious and uneconomic practices in the distribution of articles of standard quality under a trade-mark, brand or name.

"The bill is in no sense a general price-fixing act. Under no condition does it authorize a contract or agreement between manufacturers and producers or between wholesalers or between retailers as to the sale or resale prices of any commodity.

"Nor does the bill prevent the resale of a commodity at any price where one is closing out his stock of goods for the purpose of discontinuing that line, or where the goods have been damaged or have deteriorated in quality and proper notice has been given to the public.

"It is important to note that this bill applies only to commodities which are in fair and open competition with commodities of the same general class produced by others. If this essential factor is not applicable to a certain commodity, then the bill has no force or effect whatsoever with respect to it.

"This bill in no way sanctions monopoly, monopoly prices or combinations in restraint of free competition between commodities.

"It seems to me to be sound economy to devise a method whereby a manufacturer or producer may protect himself against undue slashing of the price of his product, with the consequent destruction of the value of his trade-mark and good-will and with unnecessary loss to others.

"Moreover, I believe this bill will protect the small independent merchant, retailer and business man. It should offer some protection against devastating cut-price practices such as the ruthless method of loss-leader articles.

"The bill will also serve to discourage falsification and adulteration of commodities."

Immediately, Macy's took large ads in the New York papers telling the public of the evils of price fixing. The attack in the first part of their advertisement of May 18th described how manufacturers might get together to fix prices. Then the ad abruptly shifted ground and deplored the price provisions in the book, drug and tobacco codes and implied that the price provisions of these respective codes allowed manufacturers to combine to fix prices. This implication cannot by the wildest stretch of the imagination be sustained against the Publishers or Booksellers Codes.

Wanamaker's on Monday printed a double column beside its ad in which it quoted from Governor Lehman's statement and then continued:

"Wanamaker Principles are always in the Public Interest. When the NRA Retail Code was decreed by President Roosevelt effective October 30, 1933, John Wanamaker, New York and Philadelphia, made this announcement:

"The principles thus laid down have been always recognized and preserved by us since the creation of our business and should have been engraved in the mercantile law of the nation.

"First—The new code forbids the deception of the customer.

"Second—It forbids all false claims and false advertising.

"Third—It forbids the alluring device known as the loss-leader, under which some article is actually advertised and sold for less than its cost for the purpose of attracting trade. It is estimated, by reason of this insidious usage, practiced by a certain class of stores, thousands of small retailers, operating through the country, have been driven out of business.

"It should operate to discourage all ballyhoo, the Barnum form of baiting the unwary, high pressure methods of advertising and salesmanship and exaggerated illustrations and descriptions in an effort to create daily forced sales.

"With us it is only a matter of going straight forward. Quality in merchandise, genuine value, service to the customer, justice to the employee, accepted truth in advertising—these are the principles that have been with us from the beginning."

Booksellers are, of course, jubilant over the signing of the Feld-Crawford Bill which gives them some assurance that they can be permanently protected against predatory price cutting. The passing of the Fair Trade Bill in New York State is even more important to them than to retailers of drugs and tobacco because the book business is so largely concentrated in New York City.

The New York Times reported on May 21st that manufacturers of trade-marked merchandise had already begun to take steps to operate under the permissive right granted by the Feld-Crawford Bill and that the new law would be discussed at an industry-wide conference of the toilet goods and perfumery trade, which began on May 21st at the Hotel Plaza in New York. The National Wholesale Druggists Association plans to send out a special bulletin urging manufacturers to avail themselves of the new law to check predatory price-cutting, and will urge that contracts between manufacturers and retailers be reasonable and fair to the consumer.

AN ACT

To protect trade mark owners, distributors and the public against injurious and uneconomic practices in the distribution of articles of standard quality under a distinguished trade mark, brand or name

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Subdivision 1. No contract relating to the sale or resale of a commodity which bears, or the label or content of which bears, the trade mark, brand, or name of the producer or owner of such commodity and which is in fair and open competition with commodities of the same general class produced by others shall be deemed in violation of any law of the state of New York by reason of any of the following provisions which may be contained in such contract:

- (a) That the buyer will not resell such commodity except at the price stipulated by the vendor.
- (b) That the vendee or producer require in delivery to whom he may resell such commodity to agree that he will not, in turn, resell except at the price stipulated by such vendor or by such vendee.

Subdivision 2. Such provisions in any contract shall be deemed to contain or imply conditions that such commodity may be resold without reference to such agreement in the following cases:

- (a) In closing out the owner's stock for the purpose of discontinuing delivering any such commodity.
- (b) When the goods are damaged or deteriorated in quality, and notice is given to the public thereof.
- (c) By any officer acting under the orders of any court.

Section 2. Wilfully and knowingly advertising, offering for sale or selling any commodity at less than the price stipulated in any contract entered into pursuant to the provisions of section one of this act, whether the person so advertising, offering for sale or selling is or is not a party to such contract, is unfair competition and is actionable at the suit of any person damaged thereby.

Section 3. This act shall not apply to any contract or agreement between producers or between wholesalers or between retailers as to sale or resale prices.

Section 4. The following terms, as used in this act, are hereby defined as follows: "Producer" means grower, baker, maker, manufacturer or publisher. "Commodity" means any subject of commerce.

Section 5. If any provision of this act is declared unconstitutional it is the intent of the legislature that the remaining portions thereof shall not be affected but that such remaining portions remain in full force and effect.

Section 6. This act shall take effect immediately.

Work of the Code Authority

In the Year of Its Existence the Booksellers Code Has Proved Its Value Beyond Doubt

THE NATIONAL BOOKSELLERS CODE AUTHORITY, which held its first meeting on April 14, 1934, the day after the signing of the Retail Booksellers Code, has served during the past 13 months as the efficient administrator of one of the most successful and workable of the NRA Codes. During that time it has heard complaints concerning violations of the Code, and in practically all cases in which there was an actual violation has secured immediate compliance. The Code Authority has also answered innumerable questions concerning the interpretation of code provisions and has referred these interpretations to Washington for confirmation. It has formed committees to make studies of a number of trade problems, including library discounts, circulating libraries and bookseller-publisher relations. And it has maintained constant touch with developments in Washington, representing the Retail Book Trade in open hearings on the continuation of NRA, etc.

The Booksellers Code produced the following results:

1. Increased employment in the trade.
2. Decreased hours of labor in the trade.
3. Increased some salaries in the trade.
4. Increased sales in the trade.
5. Increased new book stores.
6. Protected the consumer by the partial reduction in loss leader merchandising and by the NRA price control committee.
7. Reduced bookstores' losses and in some cases started book stores on the road to possible profit.

That the Booksellers Code has been of value alike to publisher and to bookseller and to consumer is borne out by the brief filed by Cedric R. Crowell, Chairman of the National Booksellers Code Authority, at the N.I.R.B. hearing in Washington in January (see Publishers' Weekly for January 12, 1935), in which it was shown that out of 31 of the leading trade book publishers 30 had shown an increase in sales for 1934 over 1933, while only one showed a decrease, and that of only 4%. The increases ranged from .004% to 180%, and 25 out of the 30 showed an increase of more than 10%. It is also significant that the Booksellers Code was approved by the Consumers' Advisory Board of the NRA.

Unofficial spokesmen in Washington have indicated that if all codes were like the booksellers' code in administration and effect, there would be no question of continuation of the NRA nor of its benefits.

When the Temporary Booksellers Code Authority held its first meeting on April 14, 1934, O. J. Libert, Deputy Administrator of the NRA, and David Barr, Assistant Counsel of the Fourth Division of the NRA, came to New York from Washington to assist in the organization. At that time Cedric R. Crowell was elected temporary chairman and Harriet Anderson, temporary secretary. These officers were later confirmed for the first year. The Board of Directors of the American Booksellers Association and the National Association of College Stores had earlier taken action to select members of the N.R.C.A., and the Code Authority in permanent form consisted of Cedric R. Crowell of the Doubleday, Doran Book Shops; Frank L. Magel of the Putnam Book Store, N. Y.; Richard F. Fuller of the Old Corner Bookstore, Boston, and Harriet Anderson of the Channel Bookshop, N. Y., representing the A. B. A.; Walter Cox of Wanamaker's in Philadelphia and Virginia Kirkus of the New York Office, representing booksellers not members of the A. B. A., and James H. Lott of the New York University Bookstore representing the National Association of College Stores. S. F. Heinritz who had been a member of the Consumers' Advisory Board of the NRA served as an Administration member of the Code Authority until he was succeeded this year by Walter Spreckels.

On April 17, 1934, the Code Authority officers invited representatives of the New York City department stores to a meeting to secure prompt and uniform compliance with the Code in New York, a compliance that has been uniformly maintained for the past year.

At one of the early meetings Richard F. Fuller was made the representative of the National Booksellers Code Authority on the National Retail Code Authority, and Frank L. Magel was made the representative on the New York Local Retail Code Authority. Since that time Mr. Fuller has practically commuted between New York and Washington and has represented the booksellers in many important conferences in Washington.

Committees were immediately set up to study various trade problems. The Committee on Rental Libraries after a number of meetings sent out questionnaires to 2000 rental libraries, to find out what they considered fair practices and what they were doing in regard to rates and regulations. It was discovered that there was so much difference between individual communities that the only thing that could be done would be to take some kind of action to prevent the use of rental libraries as loss-leaders. The Code Authority hopes to be able to meet this problem in some way if the NRA is continued.

The Committee on Public Libraries, with Virginia Kirkus as chairman, set up local committees to make a survey of country-wide practices. This committee was invited by the Buying Committee of the American Library Association to discuss library discounts and went so far as to make a recommendation to the NRA for a schedule of minimum library discounts, graded according to the size of the library. As a result of strong opposition from the public libraries the Code Authority withdrew the proposed schedule.

The Committee on Bookseller-Publisher Relations, composed of Richard F. Fuller, chairman, Cedric R. Crowell, Frank L. Magel and Walter Cox, was very active in conferring with publishers during the writing of the Publishers' Code.

During its early meetings the Code Authority worked out with the book clubs methods of selling book club memberships through the bookstores in compliance with the Code.

At all these meetings and between meetings there were numerous questions from booksellers and others to be answered. Some of these were answered individually, but those which would be of interest to the trade as a whole were set aside for release to the trade through the Publishers' Weekly and the Retail Bookseller. Most of the questions had to do with matters of price and discounts.

A ruling was made, and confirmed by Washington, that new reprint editions definitely came under the price provisions of the Code, and all book outlets were notified to this effect.

A budget was set up for the operation of the Code Authority, which was supported by the American Booksellers Association during the first few months, and assessments were levied beginning January 1, 1935, at the same rate as those for the General Retail Code Authority. On January 3rd, Robert M. Coles was made executive secretary of the Code Authority.

Since its organization the Code Authority has functioned smoothly as a coordinating body. It has continued to answer questions as they have come up; it has investigated complaints of non-compliance, and, in most cases, has found that when a violation has occurred, it has been due to ignorance of code provisions rather than to intentional violation; it has been in constant touch with Washington in regard to the Code; it has gone on record as favoring the passage of the Feld-Crawford Bill in New York State, and it has been constantly studying numerous problems concerning the booktrade as a whole.

The Booksellers Code Authority is at present actively engaged in putting before the Administration the proof of the benefits that have been secured to the trade through the operation of the Code during the past year. Booksellers, themselves, are aware of these benefits, and so are publishers. The Administration is aware that the united action of the booksellers, in observing the Code and in giving it intelligent administration, has made it one of the few Codes to achieve unqualified success. If NRA is not continued, booksellers know that the trade will be set back a long way on the road to recovery.

Octavus Tome's New Deal

DONALD PORTER GEDDES

of the Columbia University Press

"WHAT WE NEED," Octavus heard himself saying, "is a new deal for the forgotten bookseller." At this point, five hundred forgotten booksellers, assembled for their annual convention, interrupted with a roar of approval.

"The time has come. . . ." But he could get no further. At last the booksellers of the United States had found their champion—had discovered the leader who was to show them the way out of the economic wilderness in which they had been lost for six years.

Octavus Tome stood on the platform, modestly waiting for the noisy and raucous expressions of enthusiasms to die down, for he had much more to say. But the booksellers had heard enough to convince them that he was their man. They needed no more program, no more explanations, no more promises. "Tell it to the publishers," they shouted. "Yes, tell the publishers the five points of your new deal. We're with you a hundred percent."

It was an unusual position in which Octavus found himself, for he was more than president of the booksellers' organization, he was virtually the dictator of an industry. He had been elected without a dissenting vote—at least, without one that could be heard above the unprecedented approval with which he was roared into office. His platform had been a new deal for the forgotten booksellers and a five-point program of concessions from publishers.

It was an unusually deferential group of publishers which waited on Octavus that afternoon. "We come," said their spokesman, Mr. Doublespread, "in the spirit of co-operation. We are pleased to see the booksellers revitalized. And we wish to congratulate you, Mr. Tome, upon your election. And we wish to ask if we might be informed of your plans and program."

Octavus had never met Mr. Doublespread before, but he had had correspondence with him—correspondence which Doublespread had probably forgotten, but which still stuck in Tome's throat. The publishers little realized it, but their spokesman had been ill-chosen.

"Why that's very nice of you, Mr. Doublespread, very nice, indeed," beamed Octavus. "I'd be afraid you might be a little angry about my five points."

"But what are your five points, Mr. Tome? We're very anxious to hear about them." Octavus recognized the new speaker as Mr. Blurb.

"Oh yes," said Octavus, and he sounded as though he was coming out of a daze, "the five points. Well, first there's point number one. It has to do with discounts."

A chorus of publishers echoed, rather, gasped "discounts," much as though the word had been dislodged from their throats by a painful blow in the stomach.

"Yes," said Octavus, "it's about discounts. Those booksellers back there, every single one of them, told me to go ahead and fix things up with you. Anything that I approved of, they said they'd approve. That makes things much simpler for you, gentlemen, doesn't it," suggested Octavus, guilelessly. "You are thereby saved the trouble of coming to terms with each bookseller, separately."

The publishers agreed silently, if at all. As a matter of fact, Octavus noted that these gentlemen were all glowering at him, but that disturbed him not one whit, for publishers had been glowering at him for thirty years, and it all made him feel quite natural and at ease.

After each publisher had scowled and glowered his hardest, Mr. Doublespread stepped into his rôle of spokesman. "Mr. Tome. That's quite a coincidence. Your first point being about discounts, I mean. You see, we have just been talking about discounts, ourselves."

"Is that so?" replied Mr. Tome, with his innocent, full-moon eyes.

"Yes. While you booksellers were gathered inside, we got to talking, and we all decided that maybe the booksellers really did need a larger margin. So we decided we'd increase all discounts."

"That's fine, Mr. Doublespread. And that disposes of point number one. Now did you gentlemen happen to talk about or decide anything else, while we booksellers were inside?"

Doublespread thought fast, but couldn't think of anything else on which he dared commit himself, and the others with him. "No, Mr. Tome, we didn't. You see, discounts took up all of our time."

"Well, we thought about some other things," continued Octavus. "Would you like to hear them?"

"Indeed we would," chorused the unsuspecting publishers. "Could we take them up, one by one?"

"Why, of course. Let's see, first, there's the matter of discounts."

"But," said one of the beleaguered publishers, "we've attended to them. We've decided to increase all discounts by two percent."

"Oh, you have?" interposed Octavus. "Well, in case you gentlemen are interested, all discounts are going to start at forty percent."

Doublespread grew red in the face, tried to speak, but failed and finally fell to the floor, quite unconscious. Strangely enough, no one paid the slightest attention to their fallen comrade. Blurb addressed himself to Tome, "We can't do it. It would put us out of business."

"Humph," mused Octavus, "that's strange. Without a forty percent discount, the booksellers are going out of business; and with it, the publishers are going out of business."

"But we can't do it," Blurb insisted.

"Very well," said Tome, "but don't expect to sell books to bookstores. They won't buy them."

At this point, Blurb's dander began to come up, and if he wasn't mad, he was fast becoming so. "What do you mean, they won't buy our books?"

"I mean exactly what I say." Tome was quite cool. "We booksellers have decided to stand together, for once. Beginning next Monday, we shall not sell any book which carries the imprint of a house which has not met our demands."

"Do you really mean this?" pleaded Blurb.

"Of course we mean it. What do you think this is, a play?"

By this time, two more publishers had joined Mr. Doublespread. Tome, however, hardly noticed the three on the floor. "Let me tell you what else we want," and he began to recite. "Point number two; we want fifty percent return privileges on everything we buy." Another publisher folded up, and joined his weaker comrades.

"Point number three; we want advertising in our local papers."

"Oh!" groaned Blurb, as that gentleman took his place beside what now constituted a silent and unconscious majority of his colleagues.

"Point number four," continued Octavus, who, for some reason was unaware or at least quite unmoved by the toll he was taking in the cream of the publishers of the country, "we want circulars for every book." Of the two surviving publishers, both of whom were unknown to Tome, one gave up the ghost at the thought of printing circulars for every book he published.

The lone survivor steeled himself for the coup de grace which he felt was inevitable. By this time Octavus Tome was as one possessed. He little realized what he was doing, save that his shots were finding their marks. "Point number five; we want a five percent cash discount on all bills, when we have the money, and when we haven't, we want post-dated invoices."

Tome saw the last publisher go down, and half-realized that he was talking to a most unappreciative audience, but he was much too excited to stop without making his final thrust. "And that, gentlemen," he said with all the pride he could muster, "is the five-point program of the new deal for forgotten booksellers."

"What are you talking about?" came a voice, dim and distant.

"You know damned well wh. . . ."

"Octavus Tome. What do you mean by talking to me like that. Are you dreaming?"

Slowly, Octavus opened his eyes to gaze upon his wife.

"Get up, Octavus, get up. If you're going into the city for the booksellers' convention, you'd better hurry. You've only got an hour to catch the eight-two."

"Excuse me, dear. Guess I must have been dreaming," said the late leader of the almost successful revolution of the booksellers against the publishers, who, now, was not quite sure whether he wanted to go to the convention after all.

News of the Week

Booksellers Back NRA Extension

EDMUND S. McCAWLEY, President of the American Booksellers Association, appeared before the Ways and Means Committee of the House in Washington on May 22d, speaking in favor of extending the NRA for at least two years. Mr. McCawley filed a brief with the committee identical with that he filed with the Senate Investigating Committee on April 18th when he appeared before it. He then spoke in favor of the Doughton House Resolution, introduced on May 20th, and against the Clark Senate Resolution, passed on May 14th, saying that the nine-months' extension provided by the Senate was too brief, that it would be discouraging to booksellers to expend time and effort on revision of the code only to have it promptly expire. As to the Senate provision excluding those wholly in intra-state business, Mr. McCawley spoke for a provision broad enough to cover intra-state and inter-state business, so he pointed out that almost all booksellers because of their mail order are engaged in inter-state commerce. Finally Mr. McCawley stressed the decided necessity for booksellers of the provision in the House Resolution which reads:

"No price fixing by concerted action, either with or without governmental supervision, shall be permitted or sanctioned under the provisions of any code; provided, that provisions which the President shall find necessary and in the public interest, and which are established and enforced under government control, in order to prohibit discriminatory price cutting, or otherwise to protect small enterprises against discrimination or oppression, or to deter the growth of monopolies, or to prevent the waste of mineral natural resources shall be permissible, that no person shall thereby be prevented from selling goods or services, without discrimination between customers at a fair competitive price." The Senate Resolution ruled that no price fixing shall be permitted or sanctioned under the code except in the case of mineral resources.

Mr. McCawley spoke briefly of the injury done by predatory price cutting in the retail book business where books make ideal loss leaders. Lewis B. Traver of Trenton and Stanley G. Remington of Baltimore attended a hearing with Mr. McCawley.

Cedric Crowell of the Doubleday, Doran Bookshop, Frank Magel of Putnam's, Arthur Brentano, Jr., Virginia Kirkus, Philip Sipser of Dutton's Book Store, A. B. Carhart of Rodger's Book Store of Brooklyn all attended the large mass meeting at Constitution Hall which was held at the same time the House Committee met. 1,700 influential business men representing 150 principal industrial and business groups, attended this rally, and after hearing addresses by leaders of numerous industries, adopted resolutions to be sent to the President and Congress. Those resolutions condemned the Senate Clark bill and endorsed the Doughton measure.

Two Code Decisions Made

Two DECISIONS have been handed down by the Trade Book Publishers' Code Authority, one on the question of whether a book given as a prize for commercial purposes is a premium, the other whether the author of a book which is one of a set consisting of a number of different titles each written by a different author may, as co-author, receive a discount on all the books contained in the set. Both decisions were in the affirmative.

How to Select Books on Sports

AN OUTSTANDING PIECE of list-making is the "Guide to Sports and Outdoor Recreations," compiled by Wilbur M. Ranck, now of the Columbia Library School and son of the well-known librarian of Grand Rapids, Mich., Samuel H. Ranck.

The list covers books of the last fifteen years and is published in the Research Quarterly of the American Physical Education Association. The books are carefully classified and annotated, and the selection can be relied on by the bookseller in planning to enrich his stock of books on sports which are popular in his section of the country. Copies of this Quarterly can be obtained from the American Physical Education Association, 311 Maynard, Ann Arbor, Mich. The section of books on fishing, for example, includes a dozen books on the general subject, four books on equipment, eight books on bait and fly fishing, three on bass fishing, etc. The section on sailing contains a selection of eight books, that on hiking, six, on mountaineering, eight. Thus the list is sufficiently selective to be the basis for stock building. Besides these lists, there is a specific recommendation of a small collection of books best suited to a small library and another selection particularly appropriate for a boys' and girls' department.

W.N.B.A. Meets May 28th

THE NEXT MEETING of the Women's National Book Association will be held on Tuesday evening, May 28th, at eight o'clock, at the Hotel Pennsylvania. The speakers will be Dorothea Brande, who will speak on "Some of the Problems of Becoming a Writer"; Margaret Mochrie, whose subject will be "Presenting the News to Young People," and Stuart Scheftel, whose talk will be on "Journalism Enters a New Field."

Editors Hear Plea for Better Proof-Reading

THE EDITORIAL LUNCH CLUB, which has been formed to supply a needed though informal organization for the New York publishing world, came together for its second meeting at 150 East 36th Street on the call of Maxwell Aley of Longmans, Green & Company and Robert Innes Center of Dodd, Mead & Company, who acted as a committee on organization. More than thirty representatives of various publishing houses responded to the invitation, and the interest in the meeting indicated many successful gatherings for the future.

The guest of this meeting was William Soskin, former Literary Editor of the New York Evening Post and now of the New York American. Mr. Soskin was asked to outline what elements most affected him in selecting books for review. He was also questioned as to how much the editorial policy of a paper effected the reviewer. Many other questions followed. Mr. Soskin urged the editors to take back to their offices his opinion that recent books had shown a marked carelessness of copy preparation and in proof-reading. He felt that publishers under the stress of economies were probably not paying enough attention to this point and in many cases had dropped expert proof-readers from their staffs. He said that numerous books were coming through the press from well-known publishing houses with errors that would not be countenanced in an average newspaper office, where proof-reading is necessarily done at a much more rapid pace.

The College Library

THE LIBRARIAN OF ANTIOCH COLLEGE, B. R. Lyle, has published through F. W. Faxon Company a book on "College Library Publicity" which will be of interest to booksellers who sell in college communities as well as to librarians themselves. Many of the ideas for publicity, culled from many sources, would be as applicable to a bookstore serving the college undergraduate as to the librarian.

Mr. Lyle suggests that the library interest itself in the personal ownership of books, thus not only stimulating the student to own books which will carry him through life but also relieving the strain on the public library's funds for the purchase of books. Outlined campaigns for book purchase emphasize the purchase of such volumes as Webster's Dictionary, the Hammond Atlas, Bartlett's "Quotations," Shakespeare's Works, the "Dictionary of Modern English Usage," etc., and include making the general shelf stock look more attractive by turning books with side displayed, placing posters and reading lists on or near the shelves, and, in general, making the shelves look like something more than mere storage space.

Student Libraries

THE FIRST PRIZE of $30 and a second prize of $20 will be awarded to the members of the class of 1936 of Oberlin College who can show the best collections of books accumulated during their college course. The awards are the gift of Professor P. D. Sherman of the college faculty. The librarian of the college will be the judge of the collection.

The first annual student library prize at the Connecticut College for Women at New London, which is a gift of Charles E. Rush, assistant librarian of Sterling Library, Yale University, was presented on May 22nd. Frederic G. Melcher, president of the R. R. Bowker Co., acted as judge of the award. The rules of the contest were printed in the Jan. 5, 1935 issue of the Publishers' Weekly.

Best Books for Summer Reading

HERSCHEL BRICKELL is preparing for the New York Evening Post a list of the best books for summer reading. A full page listing about 70 books will appear as a special full page in the New York Evening Post on Tuesday, May 28th. The original feature of this list is that it will list, first of all, the two best books published between January 1st and June 1st. Mr. Brickell will say that if but two books are to be read during the summer, they should be Thomas Wolfe's "Of Time and the River" and Walter Millis' "Road to War: America 1914-1917." If the reader can read as many as ten books during the summer, Mr. Brickell recommends four additional fiction titles and four additional non-fiction titles. By these cumulative groupings the full list of 70 best books for summer reading was finally chosen.

The full page, including publishers' advertising, will be reprinted on coated stock as a poster. A. A. Van Duym, in charge of window display for the Doubleday Bookshops, will display the poster with the books in a number of the Doubleday shops next week. Many New York bookshops will display the poster prominently.

Esquire Unwittingly Plagiarizes Ambrose Bierce

ARNOLD GINGRICH, editor of Esquire, and his staff recently received from Alvin B. Harmon, a graduate of Annapolis, a hair-raising yarn titled "The Perlu." The editors read it with great enthusiasm and accepted it for the June issue. In the five days following the publication of the manuscript—the five days including Sunday—they received well over two hundred letters from readers pointing out that the story had been meticulously copied with a few changes in style from one of Ambrose Bierce's best known stories "The Damned Thing," from his book "Can Such Things Be?"

Mr. Harmon says that he left the Navy some years ago "to enter finance." His alibi, it is understood, was that the story was so well-known and so widely reprinted that it had become common property.

Mr. Gingrich said that he could not have found a better way of gauging the intelligence of his audience than the immediate discovery, by so many readers, of the literary plagiarism.

Esquire plans to publicize the affair as widely as possible, and in the July issue will publish the author's amazing apologia and some dozen or so of the best letters from readers. It also plans to publish a little booklet exhibiting parallel passages from the Bierce story and from the Harmon imitation, together with the author's remarks and more of the readers' letters. This brochure will be furnished by Esquire on request.

Connecticut Guide Published

THE CONNECTICUT EMERGENCY RELIEF COMMISSION has just published "The Connecticut Guide" together with a Guide Map in four colors, which sells for $1. The book is unique in that it is the first of its kind to be published in this country, and its publication at this time coincides with the Connecticut Tercentenary. It should be of interest to the traveler, historian, teacher, pupil, stranger and resident of the state. The project was made possible through the interest of the State Planning Board, initiated with CWA funds and completed with FERA funds.

Jane Addams Biography Coming

THE LIFE OF JANE ADDAMS, distinguished humanitarian and social worker and winner of the Nobel Prize, who died on May 21st, will be memorialized in a definitive and authorized biography now practically completed by her nephew, James Weber Linn, who is Professor of English at the University of Chicago and author of successful novels and works on English and American literature. This biography, it is anticipated, will be published by D. Appleton-Century Company in the early autumn. It has been written with the full cooperation of Miss Addams.

Professional Group to Meet

A SECOND MEETING of executive workers and professional employees of the publishing and book trades will be held at the Pythian Temple, 135 W. 70th Street, New York City, on Tuesday evening, May 28th, at 8 P. M. in the Damian Room. Proposals for a permanent structure and policies will be presented to the group at this meeting. All those employed in executive or professional capacities, in the editorial, manufacturing, publicity or other departments of book publishing houses or monthly magazines are invited to attend.

Crisis Not Yet Past

SCARCELY A MORE CRITICAL TIME could have been chosen by the American Booksellers Association for its annual convention than this week. As the booksellers come together for a short, well-filled session this Monday, the NRA is fighting for its life in Washington, and the chances are little better than even that the protection offered the bookselling trade by the price maintenance provisions of the Booksellers Code will be continued for another two years. On the other hand a strong bulwark against the chaos of unrestricted price-cutting has been erected in New York State, the center of price cutting activity, by the signing of the Feld-Crawford Bill which would allow manufacturers of trademarked articles that are in open competition with other articles of the same general class to enter into contracts with retailers stipulating that the price set by the manufacturer must be maintained by the retailer.

The Booksellers Code has been so successfully administered and so beneficial to the entire booktrade that no one with the trade's interests at heart wants to see it go by the board. Every effort is being made by the A. B. A. to secure continuation of the Code. This week a number of booksellers, including officials of the A. B. A., went to Washington to participate in a mass meeting of business and industry in support of the continuation of the NRA. Members of the A. B. A. have testified at length in Washington during the past few months as to the great benefits of the Code. These activities and possible future action will be discussed and commented upon during the Monday morning session of the convention. Booksellers, whether or not they attend the convention, will be urged to continue to take active steps toward letting the Administration and political leaders know how much they feel the NRA has benefited small business as represented by retail booksellers.

Whether or not the NRA is continued, the Feld-Crawford Bill, and the similar laws that have been enacted in seven other states, offer a further means of continuing the battle against loss-leader selling. That these laws are significant is evidenced by the fact that the day following the signature by Governor Lehman of the Feld-Crawford Bill, Macy's took large advertisements in most of the New York newspapers, declaring its opposition to price-fixing or price maintenance in no uncertain terms, and setting itself up, with fine irony, as the protector of the public against "high fixed prices." Wanamaker's, on the other hand, took newspaper space to support principles and practices which forbid the use of loss-leaders and deception of the customer.

Under the Feld-Crawford Bill, publishers are now enabled to enter into contracts with all retailers in New York State providing that the price of any book, no matter what its age, may not be cut below the figure set by the publisher as the published price. At the convention, Senator A. Spencer Feld, the sponsor of the bill in the New York State Senate, will explain its operation, and the probable effect of its passage will be discussed.

It is an important convention. Last year's meeting was in the nature of a celebration

Reading Ability Lags

READING ABILITY has not made the same proportion of advancement in progressive school methods as have many other branches of learning, according to the survey which has recently been conducted by the Institute of School Experimentation of Teachers College.

In a two-year study of ten elementary and eight high schools in three different communities in New York and New Jersey, Reading Ability under the progressive schools was given a rating of 62 and under the old type of teaching 58. In the area of Literary Facts, so called, the progressive schools rated 60 and the old type of school 38. Apparently in percentages the new type of education is more successful in teaching Literary Facts than in stimulating Reading Ability, which is certainly not what would be expected from the change in method and the great increase in school libraries, both in elementary and high school grades.

The type of education which would improve reading ability by making good books much more available ought certainly to aid in raising the level of teaching in every department of a school; an improvement in teaching literary facts make no such favorable impression upon us.

Library and Best Sellers

WHEN THE WOODSIDE LIBRARY in the Queensborough System in New York opened as a new branch a year ago, Grace O. Kelley of the staff conducted an intensive study of the local reading interests in an effort to learn what books the public wished to have available on the shelves. To a surprising degree the response indicated a desire for the best sellers of the day. Of the first ten books of non-fiction asked for by a large number every book was of recent origin and had been among the most widely advertised and discussed books of the year, heading off with books like "100,000,000 Guinea Pigs," "Life Begins at Forty," etc. In fiction "The Good Earth" led all the rest by a very large margin.

It will be difficult for this library to ignore the fact that best sellers must be well represented in its collections with this evidence of the public's interest in this type of book.

over the signing of the Booksellers Code. This year's meeting may well celebrate the evidences that have recently been shown that the public's attitude toward the deceptive and uneconomical practice of loss-leader selling is changing and that the consumer is at last beginning to realize that no large merchant, no matter what his claims may be, is running a philanthropic institution, and that what the consumer saves in one instance he is bound by the laws of economics to make up for on some other purchase.

There is much work to be done. The crisis is not yet past. But the very fact that ground has been gained should give added confidence and strength to booksellers and publishers in their long fight for a fair deal.

An Embarrassing Situation

THE Publishers' Weekly has received from the Geneva headquarters of Congrès International des Editeurs its current bulletin which had gone to press just as a cable had come from the United States indicating the ratification by the Senate of the entrance of the United States of America into the International Convention of Berne. The presses were stopped and a page of congratulations was printed and broadcast to the publishers of every nation.

It is sad to think how long it will take for the bad news to catch up with the jubilation, for, as the booktrade will remember, this treaty was passed in the Senate before its members had had opportunity to consider the bill which was to accompany it and was immediately recalled before the President had signed it.

This is the kind of accident that may happen in a case where legislation must accompany a treaty, but it is very embarrassing because it will take a long time to explain to a world that has been waiting forty years for our entrance into the Union what has happened, and the opposition to the present bill would seem likely to be quite sufficient to hold it up and to demand a thoroughgoing revision rather than this partial one.

Here is the embarrassing last sentence in the Geneva bulletin: "Espérons que l'exemple des Etats-Unis ne tardera pas à être suivi par l'U.R.S.S." It looks as though Russia may yet precede us into the Union, while the United States stays outside along with China, Mexico and Siam.

Twenty-Eight Ideas for Summer Selling

FROM TIME TO TIME the Publishers' Weekly has carried articles on the promotion of books during the summer time, all of which have indicated that the summer months need not be as slack a season as they are often regarded. Here are presented 28 ideas for summer promotion. Each of these ideas has been tried out and found profitable by booksellers. Not all of them, of course, will be found practicable by all stores, but it is hoped that every bookseller will find one or two suggestions among them.

1. Revive the old but effective slogan of "Take Along a Book." Every day and especially every weekend people are starting on vacation trips more or less extensive, and they should be reminded that a book belongs in every bag just as obviously as a candy box. The chances are that half the passersby will within a week or a month be starting off on a trip and this slogan has the power of producing action. It is up to the bookseller to keep books in the consciousness of the vacationists, and every bookstore that carries such promotion signs is helping not only himself but every other bookseller to create the pack-a-book habit. Letter this slogan on a thin paper and paste it on the window glass; letter it in larger form and use it in the back of the window or on the counters.

2. Check up at once the summer mailing lists. Every local newspaper for the next month will contain reports of vacation trips of customers and other potential book buyers. Especially watch the social columns. Send a reply card to your regular customers and ask for summer addresses. Many of your customers have regular summer addresses, and you may have these in last year's records. Look through the correspondence of the summer months of the last two years and pick out addresses.

3. Use these mailing lists for a general summer catalog or the July and August numbers of a regular book list.

4. Prepare at least two special letters suitable for summer to send to these lists.

5. Put catalogs and book lists in every shipment, in every book taken out of the store during June, and in every book sent as a gift to some summer address or train or steamer.

6. Play up the summer sports in your book lists and sales letters. Use vacation vocabulary to make the appeal seem timely.

7. Get a list of summer camps and hotels in the region. Send July and monthly book lists to them asking the proprietors to put these on reading tables. If there are no bookstalls in the hotels or camps, the request will probably be granted.

8. If there is some hotel or vacation center to which many of your customers go, consider the possibility of starting a branch bookstall probably with a lending library. If such an enterprise no more than covers expenses, it will help keep you in contact with your best clients.

9. If you have a rental library, consider the possibility of establishing an exchange collection of books with summer camps or hotels in your vicinity. A collection of books could be taken out by automobile to replace the others every two weeks. The slackened demand in the city usually provides extra library stock from which a good selection can easily be drawn.

10. Offer prizes for the best essays on books contained in the collections of camp libraries. This was done a few years ago by the National Association of Book Publishers in conjunction with the Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls. The contest would help build up the relationship between the boys and girls and the parent bookshop which would be fruitful in the coming winter and would encourage the idea of every camp having its own library.

11. Suggest in the sales letter to your summer customers that they may well buy liberally for their summer places because the village library where they are staying would be greatly benefited by a gift of books. Thus great benefit is derived in far scattered communities, and the purchaser has no problem of increased luggage for the return trip.

12. Keep the vacation idea constantly in the window displays both by signs and by titles and particularly see that every type of interest is represented in the displays. One-book displays are not so effective for summer. Keep fiction and sport books as well as children's books to the front and put the prices on all books, as there are many buyers in summer resorts who are not familiar with price levels.

13. Use sporting goods in the window displays constantly to keep up the summer atmosphere. A nearby sporting goods store will be glad to lend material, such as golf clubs, swimming suits, tennis rackets, garden tools, boat models, etc. There are innumerable things that can create a summer atmosphere and each can be tied up with an appropriate book.

14. Devote a corner of the window at all times to an exhibit of books on the immediate region of the bookshop. There are always visitors in the town in summer and passersby on automobile trips, and books of local interest, which residents take for granted, should be pointed out with explanatory signs. Few American communities have taken full advantage of this type of interest. There are illustrated books on different regions: local history, fiction and books of all types by local authors. These may be connected happily in displays with fine photographs and other souvenir material, such as cannot be usually obtained in the small stall or shop.

15. If your store is on a route to some distant playground such as the great national parks, the White Mountains, Adirondacks, the Smoky Mountains, etc., play up the books on these subjects as you learn the interests and destinations of the tourists passing through. The first noted sign in a book window referring to a distant objective will certainly arouse reading interest.

16. Although automobile maps are widely distributed by filling stations, there is still a demand for maps on a larger scale and maps with more detailed information. Such maps used as a background for a window are sure to attract tourists' attention.

17. Watch the local papers for announcements of people who are contemplating European trips and send them suggestions of good books from volumes you have on hand. Suggest books as steamer gifts to the friends of those who are sailing. The metropolitan newspapers give the exact sailing dates and addresses and local tourist bureaus have on file the same information.

18. Offer to provide books from your rental library by mail. A system can be easily worked out by which the customer pays the postage by a deposit which has been made at the library. The book sent out should carry a printed return label to insure safe delivery. Special offers might be made on groups of books in order to keep them in circulation.

19. Start in June a used book sale from the volumes of the rental library for people to take to the country and to leave there, group selections of three, four or five for $1, according to the appeal of the books.

20. Make displays of omnibus books, as these afford a vast amount of reading matter for a small price. Omnibus books supply serious reading, thus encouraging people to finish a book they have long intended to read, or supply light reading, as in the well-known class of crime stories. Few travelers can resist the temptation of a bargain.

21. Consider the possibility of traveling book displays. These are difficult to manage successfully but under the best conditions have proved successful aids in building up business as well as the shop's reputation. An inexpensive automobile of good capacity to hold books is necessary for such a purpose.

22. Keep constantly behind the children's books displays, for both the stay-at-homes and the vacationists have a great deal of time for reading. Even the most active outdoor child has hours to give to reading without undermining his health. Boys and girls have been known to read from fifty to seventy books in the summer and still skip none of the activities of an outdoor life. The real reader never has enough books at hand to meet his needs.

23. Check up with local schools to find out what books they are recommending for supplementary summer reading. See if a list of such recommended books has been printed, make certain the books are in stock, and look for the opportunity to sell these books to children who are going out of town as well as those who stay at home during the summer. If the schools are recommending reading courses, be sure to become familiar with these, so you can be of real help to the children.

24. Get in touch with the recreation leaders in the town and see if there are any books on playground games and sports they would like to have you make available for the children of the city. The public library supply is likely to be inadequate for the purpose.

25. Establish an index of your customers' hobbies arranged by the sports of their special interest, not only for summer use but for next winter's selling efforts. Sportsmen read books on their hobbies not only in the summer but at other times of the year when good books on their special interests come along. Such a list systematically kept up has proved very effective. If your store is near the sea, there is a vast collection of sea literature that has perennial interest. The literature of mountain climbing is almost equally interesting.

26. Advertise in the local papers to keep your name before the public, as such papers are circulated to camps and playground centers and strangers to the community who read the papers will be attracted to the shops thus advertised.

27. Be sure to start out in June with a thorough house cleaning. Make a special effort to give a clean and attractive appearance to every section of the store. Endeavor, by decoration, by attractive displays, by individual signs, etc., to give the store a fresh and alluring appearance. Change all displays frequently, especially those in windows and on front counters. Clean all stock near the window and doors carefully once a day, as dust is plentiful in the summer when doors are open.

28. Reconsider the hours and assignments of everyone on the staff. Vacation time makes it especially essential to cover the floor thoroughly in order to make strangers as well as old customers feel welcome. A hot and tired customer entering the store should not be met by a laggard and uninterested clerk. Talk to the customers about the summer as an opportunity and occasion for reading, not as a hot spell to be lived through.

Summer Promotion Plans

ALTHOUGH THE SUMMER SEASON is still the least active of the year in both publishing and bookselling, there is increasing evidence that the promotion of reading can be a year-round proposition. Booksellers have discovered that with a little extra effort in the way of promotion books can be sold for summer reading at home, on vacation, in summer camps and at resort hotels. Publishers have discovered that no longer is the "light" novel the only type of book that can be successfully launched in the hot months.

This summer's lists contain a good number of fairly substantial volumes. They also contain a number of books on summer sports and activities and a fair representation of less serious literature. The publishers have, in many cases, laid extensive plans for promoting their books through July, August and September, in the bookstores and by national advertising. The Publishers' Weekly has secured from a number of publishers a brief description of the high spots on their summer lists, and their plans for promoting them.

D. Appleton-Century

A new novel by Joseph C. Lincoln heads the Appleton-Century summer list. It is called "Storm Signals" and is a story of Cape Cod during Civil War times. Publication will be in July, and there will be posters and imprint cards for dealers, as well as a big national advertising campaign.

"With Benefit of Clergy" by Octavus Roy Cohen (August) will have a special regional advertising campaign in the author's home, Birmingham, Alabama, as well as national advertising. Other titles include "The Life and Times of Catherine de Medici" by Francis Watson and "Sophomores Abroad" by Charles M. Flandrau, which will be given advertising in national book media and in St. Paul, Mr. Flandrau's home town.

The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

There will be a new John Erskine novel in July, entitled "Solomon, My Son!" in the vein of his earlier work. A poster will be available. George Seldes' "Freedom of the Press" will have extensive promotion and probably a poster. In August will be published "They Can't Win" by Henry Morton Robinson, a story of science in crime detection, and "The Rose Petal Murders" by Colonel Charles G. Givens. All these titles will have special effort put behind them in various forms, but plans have not yet been completed.

A map from "American Big Game Fishing" (Derrydale Press) which may be used for window display

Coward-McCann

Coward-McCann believes there should be moratoria in book circles as well as banking circles and so is publishing no books in May, one in June, none in July and two in August. The June book is "We Owed It to the Children" by Grace L. Roosevelt, an account of a motor trip through Greece and Jugo-Slavia, which is being pushed for sale to summer arm-chair travelers. In August will appear "Slaves Cottage" by George L. Howe, the older brother of "Pete" Howe, and "Escape from Youth" by Edith M. Stern.

Covici, Friede

Four titles, three fiction and one non-fiction, will receive a concentration of advertising from Covici, Friede this summer.

"Tortilla Flat" by John Steinbeck (May 28th) will have an initial advertising appropriation of $1,500 to be spent in the New York Times and Herald Tribune. Paper-bound copies have been sent to booksellers for comment, and posters are now being made.

"Fortune and Men's Eyes" by George Cronyn (June 25th) will have an appropriation of about $1000 for advertising in the New York dailies.

"Dwell in the Wilderness" by Alvah C. Bessie (August 20th) will have an appropriation of around $1500 and will be advertised in the Times, Tribune and Saturday Review of Literature. There will probably be posters.

"The Crisis of the Middle Class" by Lewis Corey (August 30th) will receive an intensive newspaper and trade advertising campaign with a minimum appropriation of $2000. There will be posters. Advertising will be done in the New York Times, Herald Tribune, The Nation, The New Republic and The New Masses.

Thomas Y. Crowell

On June 15th, in time for the summer vacation season, Crowell is publishing "Fun at Happy Acres" by Ruth C. Barlow, a juvenile with photographs. There will be vigorous advertising and a window card showing pictures from the book.

The Derrydale Press

The only title the Derrydale Press plans to publish this summer is "American Big Game Fishing" by a group of nationally known authorities, which will appear the middle of June. An 8-page circular has been imprinted for a number of stores, and the original oil paintings from which the five color plates in the book have been made will be used for window displays, together with maps and drawings from the book.

Dodd, Mead & Co.

There will be a circular in two colors, with sales copy in the form of a chatty column about the contents of the book for "The Big Town—New York Day by Day" by O. O. McIntyre (June 5th). For "The Crime at Nornes" by Freeman Wills Crofts (July 17th) and other Red Badge mysteries there will be a limited number of illuminated display signs spotlighting the book and calling attention to the Red Badge insignia. These displays are available to booksellers featuring Red Badge books.

A four-color window card will be available for "There Was Tammie" by Dorothy and Marguerite Bryan (July).

Circulars giving full information about the contents of the books will be available for "Thanksgiving Plays" and "Christmas Plays" by Anne P. Sanford (August 21st). There will be a 6 in. x 9 in. circular for "Ulysses S. Grant: Politician" by W. B. Hesseltine (September 18th) and other titles in the American Political Leader series.

E. P. Dutton & Co.

A number of important books have been scheduled by Dutton for summer publication.

"A London Story" by George Buchanan, coming in June, will have a specially prepared promotion campaign, including extensive advertising in leading newspapers and magazines, hand-made posters and imprinted posters.

"The Sea Is My Workshop" by Frank E. Walton, Jr., will have special window displays and promotion activities in California bookstores, and window display material and circulars will be available to the entire trade.

"The Endless Furrow," a first novel by A. G. Street, will be extensively promoted on publication in July, with a special advertising campaign, window posters and imprinted circulars.

One of the most important of the Dutton fall publications will be "Spring of Youth" by L. Wyn Griffith, published in August, also with special advertising, display material and circulars.

Among light fiction titles Dutton will have "Lives of a Woman," by Baroness von Hutton, "Husband to Anna" by Barbara Hedworth, "Wolf's Candle" a new Western by Dane Coolidge, "The Devil's Toy" by Anita Stewart, and "Double Turn" by Audrey Lucas.

For children there will be new dollar editions of A. A. Milne's "When We Were Very Young," "Now We Are Six," "Winnie the Pooh," and "The House at Pooh Corner," in a new and unique format that the trade is very enthusiastic about. These books will receive Dutton's largest and most elaborate promotion campaign, with special discounts, hand-made posters, window displays, imprinted circulars and advertising mats for all stores that are willing to do special merchandizing on these titles. They will appear in August.

Emerson Books, Inc.

Emerson Books has inaugurated a $1500 advertising campaign in local and national newspapers and periodicals on "A Woman's Best Years" by W. Beran Wolfe, M.D. Three-color posters are available on request.

Farrar & Rinehart

For "The Puritan Strain" by Faith Baldwin (July 3rd), Farrar & Rinehart will have imprinted postcards for the trade and a large advertising campaign similar to the one for "American Family."

"Cell 202—Sing Sing" by Warden Lewis E. Lawes (July 15th), will have a distinctive poster by Michael Gross and extensive advertising.

"Deep Dark River" by Robert Rylee (July 29th), is one of F. & R.'s big titles. There will be a quote poster and a big campaign.

"American Chamber of Horrors: The Truth About Food and Drugs" by Ruth de Forest Lamb (August), is a "consumers" book which will have a circular for the trade and extensive advertising.

There will be an imprinted postcard for "The League of Frightened Men," a Nero Wolfe story by Rex Stout (August), and a poster and special circulars for "The Temporary Gentleman" by Neil Swanson (September).

Light fiction titles include "Marriage Is Possible" by Margaret Widdemer, "Public Sweetheart No. 1" by Dora Macy, and "Jungle Gold" by Rex Beach.

Garden City Publishing Co.

As a part of Connecticut's tercentenary celebration this summer, Garden City is reissuing a special edition of Wallace Nutting's "Connecticut Beautiful" as one of the Garden City Specials at $1.79 on June 1st. The book has been completely reset and contains the best of the original illustrations and many new ones. A special poster is being made and a special advertising proposition is being considered so that stores in all parts of the country may participate as well as those in and around Connecticut.

Greenberg: Publisher

Promotion and publicity will be continued during the summer for "Philbert" by Frank Owen, published this spring by Greenberg. Philbert is being made into a comic strip, and there will be Philbert Toys and a movie cartoon of him. A poster is available.

"Ladies in the Parlor" by Jim Tully, will receive extensive promotion, and Mr. Tully is already at work on a movie version of the book. Wide promotion will also be given "Hot Oil" by George Palmer Putnam and Mell Shipman.

Harper & Brothers

Harper's summer schedule is not yet complete. The most important title scheduled to date for the summer is the Harper Prize Novel, to be published August 22nd. This, of course, will be widely advertised in dailies, book sections and magazines, and there will be imprinted post cards and a circular for the trade.

John H. Hopkins & Son

Three light titles appear on the summer list of John H. Hopkins & Son. "Shining Armor" by Louise E. Dew (June 15th); "All That Glitters" by Anne Gardner (July 15th), and "Golden Goddess" by Rob Eden (September 14th), are especially designed for promotion as light summer reading.

Houghton Mifflin

Most Houghton Mifflin books which will receive major campaigns are scheduled for publication after September 1st. Meanwhile promotion is being continued on "Green Light" by Lloyd Douglas which has become the leading national best seller.

Claude Kendall & Willoughby Sharp

Continuous promotion will be given "Dew in April" by John Clayton, recently published, which is now in its fourth printing. A large Michael Gross poster reproducing the jacket and a blow-up of the New York Times' review of the book are available, as are 18" x 24" window cards reading "Did You Enjoy 'Anthony Adverse'? If So You Will Enjoy 'Dew in April' Recommended by (name of bookseller)". The Columbia Broadcasting System will use "Dew in April" to inaugurate a series of 25-minute dramatizations of current books to be introduced this summer.

Extra jackets for use in advance promotion will be available for "The Second Mrs. Lynton" by Wilson Collison (June 28th). To promote "Wordy-Grams" a book of word games by George Reith and Robert Schirmer there will be a band around the book announcing that any purchaser who is able to find words which have not been included in the list of answers will be given one of Kendall & Sharp's current $2 novels.

Alfred A. Knopf

The most important book on the Knopf summer list is "Lucy Gayheart" by Willa Cather, scheduled for August 1st. This will have an extensive campaign behind it. Promotion all during the month of July will be given "The Dark Glass" by March Cost, author of "A Man Named Luke," and L. A. G. Strong's "The Seven Arms" will be advertised as the finest thing he has done.

Window designed by Donald Corbin of Bullock's in Los Angeles for "Green Light" by Lloyd Douglas. A green traffic light is at the center

J. B. Lippincott Co.

Lippincott's most outstanding summer title is "Cat Across the Path" by Ruth Feiner (June 13th). Initial appropriation for newspaper advertising is about $1000. There will also be a 3-color poster and a post card. Next in importance is "King Lehr and the Gilded Age" by Harry Lehr's wife, Elizabeth Drexel Lehr. There will be posters and circulars and a heavy advertising appropriation. New romances by Grace Livingston Hill and Jane Abbott will be given their usual vigorous promotion. For the transient or tourist trade Lippincott especially recommends that book-sellers promote "The Angler's Week-End Book" by Eric Taverner and John Moore, "The Popular Practice of Yoga" by K. V. Mulbagala, "The Background of Geography" by M. Whiting Spilhaus, and "Motor Cruising" by K. M. Miller and John Irving.

Little, Brown will put a consistent campaign behind "Young Renny (Jalna—1906)" by Mazo de la Roche, just published, carrying its promotion through the summer months. On June 8th, a barrage of small advertisements will be laid down all over the country recommending the Illustrated Edition of "Good-bye, Mr. Chips," published that day, as the perfect graduation gift. On the same day will appear "Land of Women" by Katharina von Dombrowski, which will be given the "works" if it gets any encouragement at all.

"Tempest Over Mexico" by Rose E. King (July 8th) will have a jacket especially suited for display, and there will be circulars available for "The Post War World: A Short Political History, 1918-1934," published the same day.

On August 2nd three novels that will bear steady promotion are scheduled: "Illyrian Spring" by Ann Bridge, "River House" by Barrett Willoughby, and a new edition of "Uplands" by Mary Ellen Chase.

Longmans, Green & Co.

No important books are scheduled by Longmans until late August or early September.

Plans to date are complete only on "The Wind Blew West" by Edwin Lanham which is scheduled for September and which Longmans is now working on to take advantage of the Texas Centennial celebration.

The Macmillan Co.

Among the Macmillan summer books that will respond to special promotion is "Learning to Cruise" by Calahan (June 11th) for which there will be display posters and circulars, and which should do as well as the author's earlier books "Learning to Sail" and "Learning to Race." "Cornish of Scotland Yard," the autobiography of Superintendent Cornish (June 18th) will have display posters and a circular or card. Small posters and cards will be available for "The New America: The New World" by H. G. Wells (June 18th) based on Mr. Wells' recent visit to this country. Large posters and circulars will be used in the promotion of "Back to Work: The Story of PWA" by Secretary Harold Ickes (June 25th). A special campaign will be carried on for "The Furies" by Hanley (July 16th), which Macmillan regards as an important discovery. Wide advertising will be given "The Struggle for Security" by Charles A. Beard and George H. E. Smith (August 27th). Display cards will be available. "All Things Are Possible" the first novel by Lewis Browne, author of "This Believing World" (August 27th) will be given wide promotion and advertising. Also on August 27th will appear a complete collection of the plays of William Butler Yeats, a companion volume to his Collected Poems.

Julian Messner, Inc.

This house has one important novel coming in early August, "Winter Carnival" by Deck Morgan. The author is a licensed bob-sled pilot. There will be a special poster, and local tie-ups in every city where winter sports are held. Olympic winter try-outs this year are expected to give the book a boost. A window display from Abercrombie & Fitch in New York will be photographed and sent to dealers as a suggestion for appealing hot-weather display.

Advertising for "National Velvet" will be carried on through the summer, and, in fact, through the entire autumn. At least $1000 will be spent during June in New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago papers. In the late autumn Morrow will publish "A Diary Without Dates" by Enid Bagnold, a short war journal not previously published in this country.

There will be a sustained effort to tie up with the news and to furnish special display throughout the summer and fall for "Men and Ships of Steel," the pictorial story of the Navy, just published. Interesting marine material will be available on request for bookstore windows.

Small display cards and heavy advertising are scheduled for "The Corpse in the Coppice" by R. A. J. Walling (July 17th). "For Life" by Nathalie Sedgwick Colby, scheduled for September 18th, is being groomed as the fall fiction leader. Booksellers will be supplied with advance material to interest their customers, and there will be a big advertising campaign with details to be announced later.

W. W. Norton & Co.

Norton's summer headliner is "Deathblow Hill" by Phoebe Atwood Taylor which will have a special jacket drawn by Edward A. Wilson. This will be published on July 27th and will have a campaign designed to produce big sales.

Penn Publishing Co.

Three romances are scheduled by Penn for summer publication: "It's a Great World!" by Emilie Loring (June 21st), "The Crystal Tree" by Louise Platt Hauck (July 12th) and "Fair as the Moon" by Temple Bailey (August 16th). There will be heavy advertising for all these titles as well as postcards in full color showing the jackets and posters. First chapters, bound in jackets, of the Loring and Bailey titles will be extensively distributed throughout the trade and libraries and there will probably be a contest for the best reviews with prizes.

The Platt & Munk Co.

Window displays of "The Dionne Quintuplets Growing Up" with the books opened to any of the 65 photographs should be sufficient to sell this title, recently published by

Poster designed by Michael Gross for "Dew in April" (Kendall & Sharp)

Platt & Munk. Another title recommended for summer promotion by the same house is "The Book of Indians" by H. C. Holling.

Reynal & Hitchcock

National advertising on a large scale is planned for "An Anthology of World Prose" edited by Carl Van Doren, which will be published July 1st. The publishers offer a special cash discount of 5% on all orders placed before publication.

California shops should do especially well in promoting "Valley People" by Frances Marion (July 18th). Miss Marion is one of Hollywood's most successful scenario writers.

"Second Growth" by Arthur Pound (August) will be given the same kind of promotion as the same author's "Once a Wilderness." Michigan stores will find a special market among residents and summer visitors.

As light summer fiction, Reynal & Hitchcock are publishing "The Constant Sex" by Elizabeth Corbett (August). They will give it national advertising and there will be a poster.

Simon & Schuster

Two Simon & Schuster headliners will be published late in June, "Eyes on the World" edited by M. Lincoln Schuster, and "The Story of Civilization: Our Oriental Heritage" by Will Durant. For the latter book there will be giant dummies, imprinted circulars, streamers and small window cards. Advertising will be very extensive. For "Eyes on the World" there will be a large display book to be used in the window, a 4-page letter containing an inside double spread of photographs from the book, imprinted with the dealer's own imprint and signature, and streamers. It will have comprehensive national advertising.

An extra selling point in advertising and promoting "Schoolhouse in the Foothills" by Alvin Harlow and Ella Enslow (August) will be the fact that it is to be illustrated by Thomas Benton. Another important summer publication is "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" by Horace McCoy.

The Viking Press

Viking is starting this month one of the biggest summer promotion programs they have had in years. At present this house has advertising contracts for $12,000 worth of space to be used in the latter part of May and early June. Half of that will be devoted to the tremendous M-G-M tie-up on "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh," and the other half to "Catherine: The Portrait of an Empress" by Gina Kaus and "Paths to Glory" by Humphrey Cobb. There will be three posters, one by Chester Eskey, for "Catherine," with a total distribution to more than 400 bookstores. A cooperative advertising plan has been worked out and several large stores have already indicated their willingness to go into it. There will be two and perhaps three posters for "Paths to Glory."

Contest posters and circulars for "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh" are now being sent out, and are available to all bookstores. There will be cooperative advertising on this book, too, in addition to the regular Viking and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer ads.

"The Pascarella Family" by Franz Werfel will be promoted with "The Forty Days," and there will be a poster featuring both Werfel books.

"The Circus of Dr. Lao" by Charles G. Finney, coming later in the summer will have a series of illustrations by Boris Artzybasheff that will be widely used in advertising and display material.

Ives Washburn, Inc.

Timely because of the motion picture is "The Life and Exploits of the Scarlet Pimpernel" by John Blakeney, published on May 24th. Special window displays and posters are available, as well as imprinted postcards, and special advertising will be carried on through the summer.

Doubleday, Doran & Co.

A summer romance by Kathleen Norris, "Beauty's Daughter" will be published by Doubleday on June 7th. There will be a printed display piece, special displays, and advertising in the Times Book Review, as well as localized advertising. On the same date will appear "Bright Destination" by Darwin Teilhet with special displays tying in the summer atmosphere of Brittany, the scene of the novel, and "Out of that Dream" a first novel by Katherine Newborg, which will have special displays and metropolitan advertising.

"Selected Short Stories of Sinclair Lewis," his first collection of short fiction, will have advertising in the Times Book Review and in daily newspapers. It will be the July dividend of the Literary Gui'd.

A new book by Somerset Maugham, "Don Fernando, or Variations on Some Spanish Themes" (July 19th) will have national advertising in daily and Sunday papers, and displays will be available.

The first novel by Sara Ware Bassett to appear on the Doubleday list, "Hidden Shoals," will appear July 19th. It also will have national advertising in daily and Sunday papers. There will be printed posters.

For advertising Kenneth Roberts' "For Authors Only" (August 9th) and his Chronicles of Arundel, $3000 has been appropriated to begin with.

"The Beachcomber" by William McFee (August 23rd) will have coast-to-coast national advertising and printed posters.

The biggest campaign of the summer will probably be put behind "The Inquisitor" by Hugh Walpole which is scheduled for August 28th.

The Macaulay Company

"What So Proudly We Hailed" by Emile Gauvreau (May 30th), will be given liberal advertising in the Times, Herald Tribune and daily papers. There will be a large poster, 22" x 28", featuring sample illustrations and the four-color jacket, and imprinted post cards are available.

A five-color poster, 10" x 13", is avail-

News from Publishers

LOTHROP, LEE & SHEPARD, impressed by the growth of the dime chain letter idea, offers a book promotion scheme that would capitalize on this fad. They suggest to receivers of the letter that instead of mailing a dime or a dollar to the first name on the list, they send a new book. Booksellers and publishers would benefit by the increased circulation, while the man at the end of the chain who received 15,000 books could open a new bookshop to take care of the increased business.

Harcourt tells us that a contract has just been signed with Anne Morrow Lindbergh for the publication of a book describing the flight Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh made to the Orient in the summer of 1931. It will be called "North to the Orient" and will be published in September.

J. Bertram Lippincott, chairman of the board of directors of the J. B. Lippincott Co., received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at a special convocation at the University of Pennsylvania on May 17th.

Audrey Wurdemann, this year's winner of the Pulitzer Poetry Prize, broadcast a half-hour reading of her work last Tuesday over a coast-to-coast hookup of the National Broadcasting Company. A second printing of Miss Wurdemann's "Bright Ambush" is now in press. It will contain one new poem not included in the first edition and will have a new preface by William Rose Benét, associate editor of the Saturday Review of Literature.

A prize contest with an award of $50 to the bookseller who writes the best interpretation of Michael Fessier's "Fully Dressed and in His Right Mind" has been announced by Alfred A. Knopf. Mr. Knopf says he has not yet heard anything like a satisfactory explanation of the author's intention, and the author himself is non-committal. The contest is open to all persons in the retail trade, clerks, buyers, and owners. All entries must be submitted by June 20th, one month after publication date, and the essays must be type-written and no more than 500 words long.

able for "Drug Store" by A. L. Furman and Harold Hadley (July 8th). This book will have a special advertising appropriation, as will "Empty Arms" by Marguerite Brener (July 15th), for which there will be a special jacket in purple on satin finish silver metal foil, and a poster.

Harrison Smith and Robert Haas, Inc.

On June 10th the price of "I, Claudius" will be reduced to $2, and a new advertising campaign will be started on this book in conjunction with "Claudius the God." Booksellers will be urged to display both books and point out the value of the set at $5. Initial appropriation is $1500 for national media and local newspapers in the larger cities.

Special efforts will also be put behind "Bailey's Daughters" by John De Meyer (July 1st), "Angel Making Music" by Ferenc Molnar (June 10th), "The Communist's Corpse" by Richard Wormser (July 1st), and two juveniles "The White Phantom" by John Hunter (June 3rd) and "Street Fair" by Marjorie Fischer (July 1st).

John Carter, London representative of the rare book department of Charles Scribner's Sons, who has been in New York for the past three months, sailed last Friday for England after assisting in the new arrangements of the rare book section of Scribner's Fifth Avenue store.

Publication of "Sweetwater Ranch" and "Murder in Haste" (Stokes) has been postponed to June 20th.

A. & C. Boni, Inc., announce that they will be closed on Saturdays, beginning May 11th.

"Fishes and Their Ways of Life" by Louis Roule (Norton) has been postponed from May 20th to June 4th. The book has been chosen by the Scientific Book Club as its June selection.

George J. McLeod, Ltd. will represent Empire Books, 551 Fifth Ave., in Canada.

Obituaries

LAWRENCE OF ARABIA

THOMAS EDWARD LAWRENCE, later known as T. E. Shaw, the name which he legalized in 1927, British soldier, author, archaeologist, traveler and translator, died in England on May 19th at the age of 46. He was best known as "Lawrence of Arabia," the man who freed the Arabs from the Turks during the World War. Before the war was over he had had one of the most amazing careers of any man of the nineteenth or twentieth century, and was called the single important military genius produced by the great war. He was educated at the Oxford High School and at the University of Oxford. Before his matriculation he was already something of an archaeologist, had traveled over most of England and France, and was deeply read in military strategy. From 1910 to 1914 Lawrence was an assistant in the British Museum excavations at Carchemish on the Euphrates. When the war broke out, after he was rejected from serving on the ground that he was too short, he joined the Cairo branch of the British Secret Service, and was of immense value in gathering information about the military operations of the Turks who were then threatening the Suez Canal and Egypt. In the same year, he was made a second lieutenant in the Arabian Army, rising to lieutenant-colonel in 1918. The outbreak of the Arab rebellion against the Turks in 1915 gave him his great opportunity to realize a dream, born in his student days, of a free and united Arabia. His victories, against forces superior numerically and in experience, and his strategies in utterly demoralizing the Turks, are so remarkable that they seem like the inventions of fiction. In 1919 he was the chief Arab representative at the British Delegation Peace Conference. It was then that he refused a peerage and the V. C. in protest against the peace treaty, and his dissatisfactions with the conclusions reached by the conference resulted in a 400,000 word manuscript, in which he also recounted his various adventures. The manuscript was lost, but Lawrence rewrote the book from memory. In 1926 it was published under the name of "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom" in a limited edition of only eight copies, of which three were destroyed, at a great loss. It is one of the rarest, costliest and most prized of books. To pay for the loss he unwillingly consented to the publication of "Revolt in the Desert," an abridgement which he made in three days. The book was published in 1927 and had an enthusiastic critical reception and went through many editions. Until last year he was a private in the Air Corps, serving under the name of Shaw, a name which he had made legally his own in 1927. He was an able linguist, speaking many European languages as well as several Arabic dialects. His last literary work was a prose translation of Homer's "Odyssey," designed by Bruce Rogers, which appeared in 1932, the twenty-eighth translation of the classic into English. He also wrote "The Wilderness of Zin" and "Egyptian and Assyrian Antiquities" in collaboration with C. L. Wooley.

HANS ULLSTEIN

HANS ULLSTEIN died in Germany on May 15th at the age of seventy-six. He was the eldest of five brothers who built up and controlled the great house of Ullstein, the largest publishers of newspapers, magazines and books on the Continent. The production plant of the firm was one of the show places of Europe and visited by all people interested in printing or publishing. The Nazi government took over the control from the brothers in 1933, although the name of the house has remained the same. The firm was founded in 1877 by Leopold Ullstein and conducted by his five sons, Hans, Rudolf, Franz, Hermann and the late Louis. At the time of its greatest activity the business employed 7,500 people and used fleets of automobiles and airplanes in the delivery of its published material. The plant and good will of the firm were valued at more than $20,000,000.

BENJAMIN HAUSER

BENJAMIN HAUSER, dealer in rare books in the Lincoln Building in New York, died on May 15th at the age of forty. Mr. Hauser established himself in the book business in 1924 at 110th Street and Fifth Avenue and three years later, having developed a special talent for the old and rare book business, moved downtown to the Lincoln Building, where he became known as a specialist in modern writers such as O'Neill, Hemingway and others and was highly respected in the first edition field for his knowledge and enthusiasm. The business will be carried on by Mrs. Hauser, who has been associated with Mr. Hauser in it. Mr. Hauser had a record of two years of distinguished service in the war with the Seventy-Seventh Division.

THIS LIST aims to be a complete and accurate record of American book publication. Publishers should send copies of all books promptly for annotation and entry, and the receipt of advance copies insures record simultaneous with publication. The annotations are descriptive, not critical; intended to place, not to judge the books. Pamphlet material and books of lesser trade interest are listed in smaller type.

The entry is transcribed from the title-page when the book is sent for record. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request, in which case the word "apply" is used. When not specified the binding is "cloth."

Imprint date or copyright date is always stated, except when imprint date and copyright date agree and are of the current year, in which case only "c" is used. No ascertainable date is designated thus: [n. d.]

Sizes are indicated as follows: F (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q (4to: under 30 cm.); O (8vo: 25 cm.); D (12mo: 20 cm.); S (16mo: 17½ cm.); T (24mo: 15 cm.); sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow.

OLD & RARE BOOKS

FREDERICK M. HOPKINS

WE HAVE RECEIVED from the Library of the University of Texas a well-printed octavo pamphlet of 40 pages entitled "Shelley: An Account of an Exhibition of Books and Manuscripts, with something of Their Literary History, Their Present Condition and Their Provenance." The "Preface" states that the exhibition herein described celebrates no anniversary of Shelley; it resulted from the delight of owning these books and manuscripts, and from the desire to stimulate a response to Shelley's genius in the imaginations of the University's students and visitors. From the University's several collections of rare books in English literature all the Shelley manuscripts, the first and rare editions of his works, and a few books owned by him were gathered and arranged in chronological display. . . . This pamphlet is largely a reprint of the explanatory descriptions used as labels for the exhibited volumes. The paragraphs epitomize chapters of Shelley's literary life, little attempt being made to thread them into a biographical narrative. Although in the preparation of these notes a minute collation of these books and manuscripts has been made with the bibliographical descriptions of Buxton Forman, Miss Granniss, and Mr. Wise, and with the Julian edition of the letters, formal bibliographical details are omitted except where interesting variations occur: for example, there is offered a re-examination of the order of the issues of "Poetical Pieces," as well as four variant bindings of "The Masque of Anarchy," and of the first and remainder bindings of the "Essays and Letters from Abroad"; moreover, it is disclosed that copies of "Laon and Cythna" wanting the errata leaf need no longer be regarded as imperfect, as Shelley did not prepare the list of errors until some days after the book was first issued. This account of the University's collection is published as a record for students of Shelley the world over, as a source of friendly envy in the hearts of other Shelley collectors, and, most of all, as a mark of gratitude to those benefactors who have built in Texas this enduring monument to Shelley. This invaluable record is published at a nominal price—fifty cents. Every student or collector of Shelley should have it, and it is of fascinating interest to students of English literature of the period.

The London Times takes a sale at Hodgson's, in which there were many private press books, as the occasion to discuss the depression prices of this class of books. The prices of the modern private press books are of interest in so far as they indicate present values in what was the department most hard hit by the depression. It is noticeable that, while the books most highly priced during the height of "private publication" have considerably declined, there remains a large class of books of which the values have remained more or less constant in the neighborhood of between £2 and £5. For example, that the Nonesuch Press Bible and Apocrypha should sell at £13 must distress many collectors; and £14 10s. is a poor return for the finest edition of Shakespeare ever printed, which was published in seven volumes at £3 12s. 6d. a volume. On the other hand, the less ambitious Nonesuch books have depreciated singularly little. An almost complete set, sold separately, fetched about £125, some of the prices being as follows: "The Book of Ruth," 1923, 5 guineas; Dante, 1928, 5 guineas; Keynes's Walton, 1929, 2 guineas; Haywood's Donne, 1929, special edition, £1 8s.; Summers's Dryden, 1931-32, 4 guineas; Homer, Iliad and Odyssey, 1931, 4 guineas. Other modern presses seem to have suffered accordingly. The Doves Press Bible used not to sell for £44, nor the Keats for £17. Even the Ashendene Press has not wholly escaped, for if £40 is a moderate price for "Morte d'Arthur," £6 5s. is less than moderate for the Raverat "Daphnis et Chloe." It is not surprising that other books intended for the "limited market" but lacking the quality of these should also have fallen in value—the Mellstock Hardy, 37 vols., to 20 guineas, and the Manaton Galsworthy, 29 vols., to £20.

THE AUTHORSHIP of the "Loving Ballad of Lord Bateman," illustrated by George Cruikshank, has been ascribed at different times to Thackeray, Dickens, and Cruikshank, and to both Thackeray and Dickens by Albert M. Cohn in his "George Cruikshank: A Catalogue Raisonne," published in 1924. Walter T. Spencer, the London bookseller, in a letter to The London Times, brings interesting testimony on the authorship of this book. He says: "It was my pleasure to know the late F. W. Pailthorpe for the last thirty years of his life; and many of your readers know that he was the artist responsible for a number of extra illustrations to the works of Charles Dickens. On examining recently some papers of his which I purchased I came across the following—and this seems to be so very interesting, in view of the date, 1866, which he gives (when the first edition of "Lord Bateman" had not attained any bibliographical importance), but I think it is only fair to make the information public, through the medium of your interesting columns" and then follows Pailthorpe's statement, too long to be reprinted here in full. Here are a few sentences: "One afternoon in 1866 or '67 I called upon George Cruikshank . . . I told him I had been very pleasantly engaged with 'Lord Bateman' and was surprised to find that the literary portion of the book was not by him but Dickens. 'Yes', said George, 'Charley did it for me.' . . . On the morning of June 10th, 1870, I received a post card from George, saying that he should call on me at 9 o'clock that evening. At the same time I was shocked to hear of the death of Dickens which came like a Thunderbolt on the world." . . . Again referring to the "Loving Ballad of Lord Bateman" and a contemplated new edition, Cruikshank said: "I so hated the fellow [Dickens] that I had a great mind to rewrite it." Here are the positive statements on two occasions, separated by several years, that Dickens was the author of "Lord Bateman" and no reference to any other person was made by Cruikshank, nor did he claim any credit himself. This Pailthorpe statement is an interesting one to both the Dickens and the Cruikshank collector.

CATALOG No. 242, "The House Inside and Out: Architecture, Design, Furniture, Gardens, Rugs, City Planning, Interior Decoration, Ornament, Tapestry, Stained Glass, Sculpture, Wood Carvings, Murals, Landscaping, Wallpaper, Peasant Art," comes from Goodspeed's Book Shop, of Boston. The 946 lots comprise selections from the libraries of three former Boston architects, with additions from the bookshop's regular stock. This catalog contains an excellent selection of books not easily obtainable, including Garner and Stratton's "Tudor Period"; Ware's "Georgian Period"; Palustre's "La Renaissance"; Viollet-le-Duc's "Dictionnaire"; Racinet's "L'Ornement Polychrome"; Westlake's "Stained Glass"; "Works of McKim, Mead and White"; Dohme's "Baroque and Rococo Architecture"; Schmidt's "Kunstchaetze in Tyrol"; Kowalczyk's "Denkmaeler der Kunst in Dalmatien"; and over 500 other useful references concerning cottages and mansions, interiors and exteriors, gardens and furniture, etc. Rarely is such a group of books brought together. The catalog is well worth preserving for the unusual information it contains.

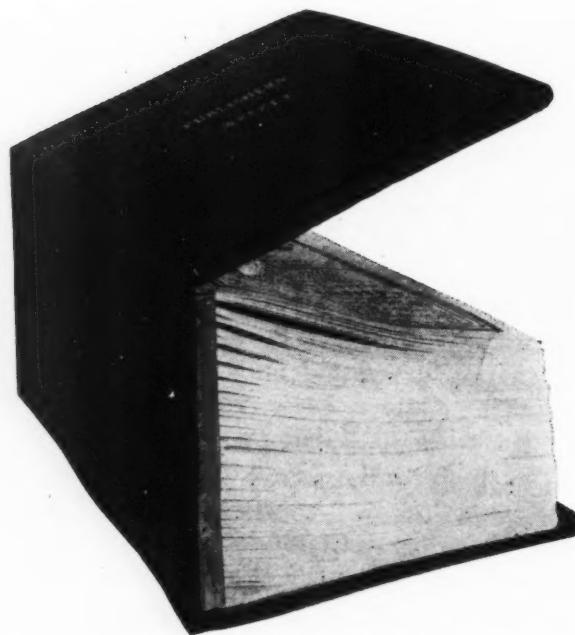

A SERIES OF "Oxford Books on Bibliography," under the general editorship of Graham Pollard, John Johnston (printer to the University of Oxford), Stanley Morison, Strickland Gibson and Theodore Besterman, begins this month with the appearance of "Proof-Reading in the Sixteenth, Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries." For a considerable number of years Percy Simpson has been gathering evidence on the subject from the time of Caxton to the end of the eighteenth century, and he shows by the means of his investigation to what extent an author was usually responsible for the printed form of his work. One of the four main divisions of the book, drawing from the unique records of the Oxford Press, whose first published book bears the date of 1468, is devoted to "The Oxford Press and Its Correctors," and there is also an "Appendix of Fees Paid to Sheldonian and Clarendon Press Correctors from 1691 to 1806." Explanations may be made that Sheldonian and Clarendon are alternative appellations of the Press at Oxford, derived from the buildings which formerly housed it.

The Weekly Book Exchange

How to use Books Wanted and Books For Sale

TERMS: "Books Wanted" and "Books for Sale," 15c. a line. No charge for address.

The first-named is for booksellers, publishers and libraries only; the second is open to individuals also.

Both departments are for subscribers' use only.

All other classifications 20c. a line. Bills rendered monthly.

Write plainly on one side of paper. The Weekly is not responsible for typographical errors. Illegible "wants" ignored. Each title must begin on a separate line except grouped titles by one author. Objectionable books excluded when noted. If books wanted were originally published in a foreign language, state whether original or translation is desired.

In answering state edition, condition and price including transportation.

Give your name and address.

Credit responsibility of advertisers is not guaranteed but space in the columns will be denied to dealers who misuse it. Pay for your purchases promptly to preserve credit standing. Copy closes Monday noon.

BOOKS WANTED

The Bookman's Manual

by Bessie Graham

EDITION

A guide to Literature on a plan which, in three earlier editions, has proved its peculiar value to booksellers, librarians and all buyers of books.

It is a volume of entrancing interest to bookmen. It covers the whole field of reading and brings it to date. Authors are listed alphabetically within each field of literature—fiction, poetry, drama, essays, etc. Includes British, Russian, French and other continental authors.

All the books of each author are listed in chronological order by date of publication. Publisher and price are given.
